Q: Speaking of water issues in NY, and Hoosick Falls – what do you think the federal and state government still need to do to address the problem?

CES: In Hoosick Falls we now have all levels of government and the company, Saint Gobain, working together to move forward in a positive direction. As I've said before, the company is ultimately responsible for cleanup and they have to step up to the plate. The small business owners and homeowners should not have to pay for this, but now everyone is working together. We have to see where problem is and if it extends beyond Saint Gobain but we're moving forward.

Q: What more does the state need to be doing?

CES: I'm not looking at past – we are moving forward and everyone is working together.
